Diplomats Present Play.

"The Traveler" a one-act play, by "The Travelen" a one-act play, by Octave Feuillet, was given with great success yesterday afternoon by five members of the diplomatic circle in aid of the Washington Diet Kitchen. The play took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, who left their house for the afternoon.

A dansant preceded the dramatic performance with the average in the library

formance, with tea served in the library

The early arrivals were welcomed at the head of the grand stairway by Miss Gwynn, Mrs. Garrison McClintock, and Mrs. Horace Westcott, Mrs. Mac-Veagh later greeting her many persona friends in the company in the library The large dining-room served as the the ater, seating several hundred persons. The action of the play took one hour. The star performers were Baron von Nogell, a Dutch diplomat now visiting in Washington, who took the title role. Laure de Breville, cousin of the travler, who has become a widow during his absence, was played by the Vicou d'Azy, to whose wonderful execu ability the success of the perform ce was largely due. The Countess de Bertier de Sauvigny, also of the French Embassy, made a fascinating maid, intro ducing much of the comedy of the piece while two suitors for the widow's hand were impersonated by Baron Frudenthal, of the German Embassy, and Mr. voi Rath, of the Austro-Hungarian Em
